

The order

Start with the hardest seat and you'll get stuck. Seat the people nobody needs to discuss first.

- 1 Plan with the yeses ☐
Only seat people who said yes. Everyone else gets their turn once they reply.

- 2 Your table first ☐
Parents and witnesses, just the witnesses and their partners, or the two of you alone.

- 3 Think in groups ☐
Uni friends at one table, cousins at the next.

- 4 Mix the groups ☐
Couples stay together, otherwise give every table a familiar face or a shared hobby. Then the party mixes later too.

- 5 The hard seats ☐
Divorced parents, the uncle, your best man's ex. There's still enough room now.

- 6 The gaps last ☐
Whoever is left goes next to a familiar face, or to the chattiest table.

Ask your venue when they need the final plan. It's often one to two weeks before the day.

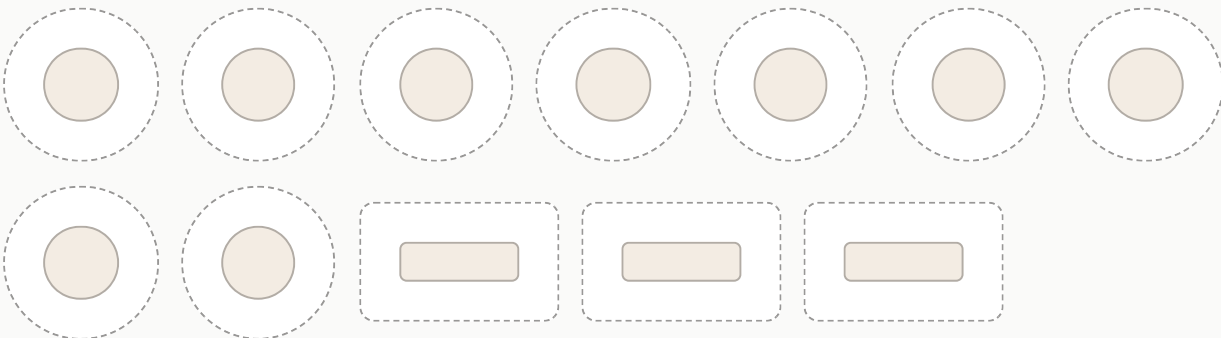

Your room

One square is one metre. Mark the entrance, dance floor, buffet and toilets first, then place the tables.

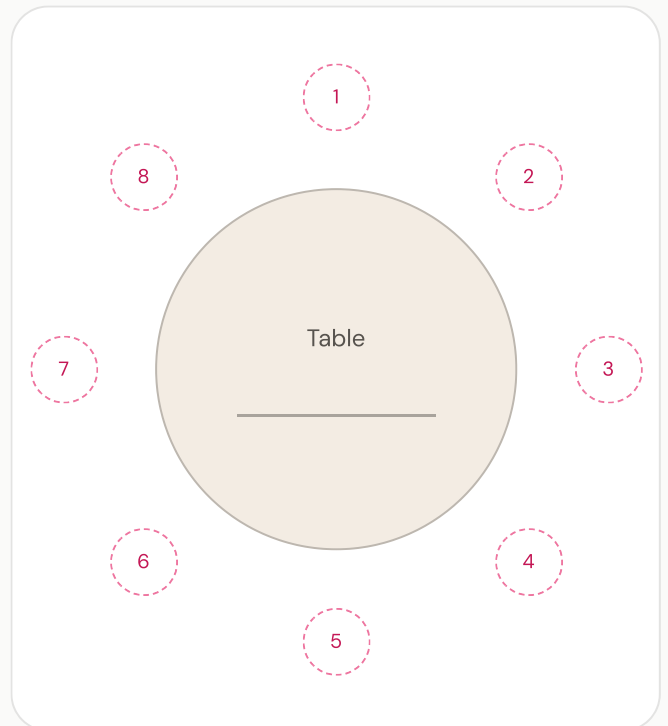

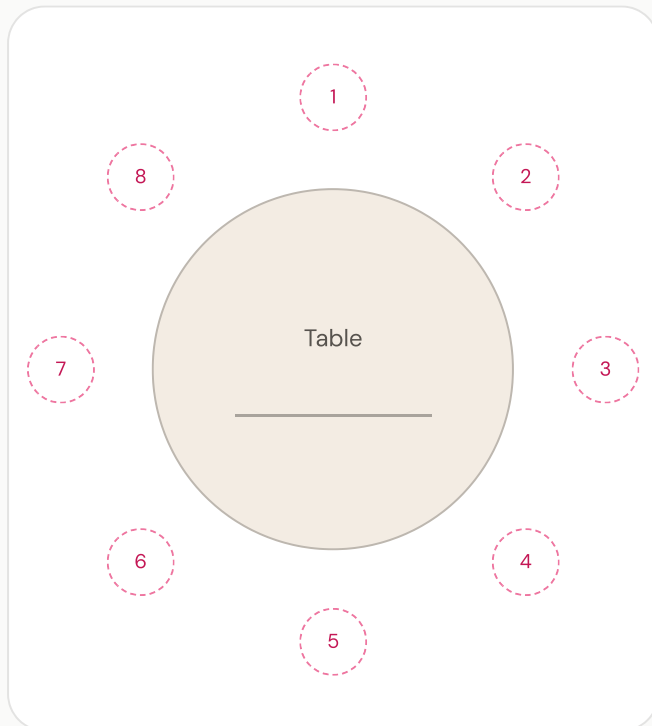

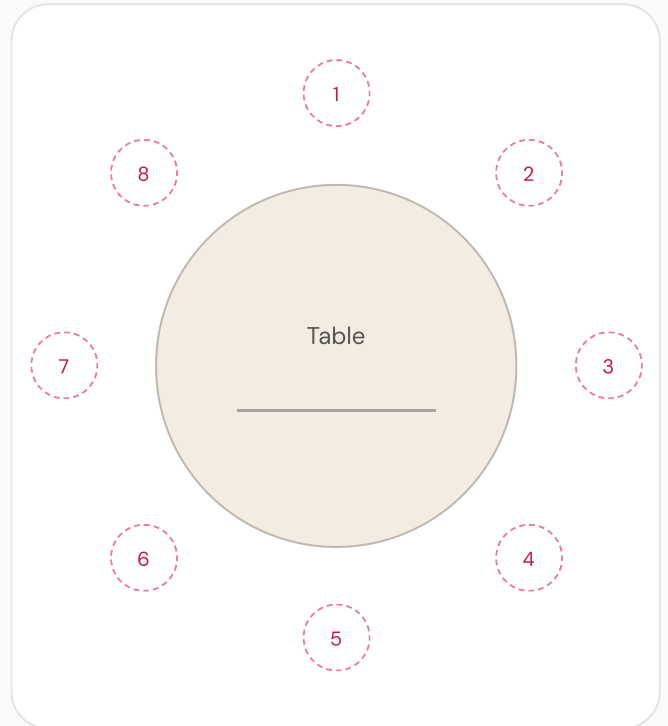

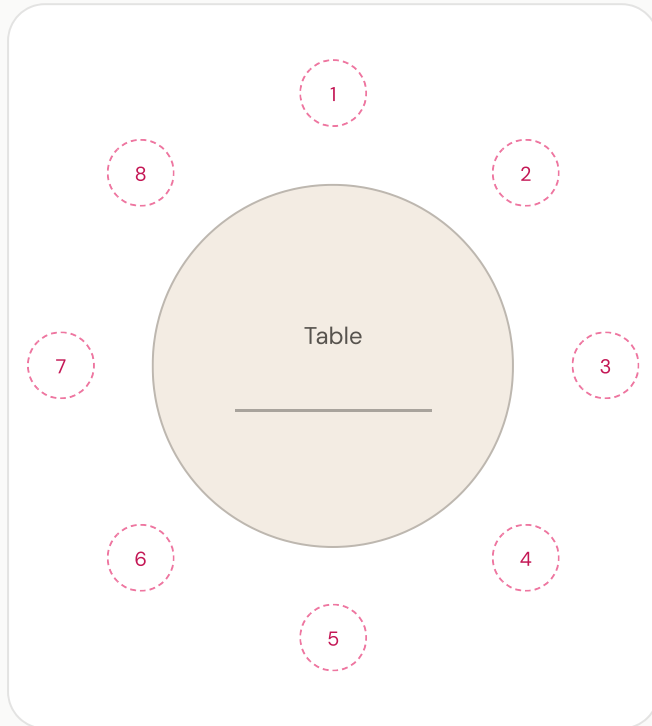

1 m

AT THE SAME SCALE: ROUND TABLES WITH CHAIRS AND LONG TABLES

Your tables

Lay the names at the seats. Moving them around is very much allowed.

Names to cut out

Print this page as often as you need. Couples get two cards that stay together.